Letters to the Editor

The Slatonite welcomes your opinions in the form of letters to the editor and will publish them provided they meet the following policy guidelines.

In general, The Slatonite's letters to the editor column exists to provide our readers with a public, published forum for their views on issues of public interest.

All letters must include the sufficient information (name, address and phone number preferred) for The Slatonite to contact the writer to verify the authenticity of the letter.

All published letters will include the name of the writer and, if it appears necessary to avoid confusion about identity, the writer's address.

The Slatonite reserves the right to edit or not edit letters for length, grammar, spelling and vulgarity. Any editing for content will be in consultation with the writer.

The Slatonite reserves the right to not publish letters that appear to present a legal risk, letters that are generally vulgar and letters that, in The Slatonite's judgment, abuse the purpose of our letters to the editor column.

The Slatonite will not edit letters or refuse to publish letters solely on the basis of whether their content agrees with The Slatonite's opinions on matters of public interest.
